Privacy Policy

01 April 2024

Dominium Capital Group is committed to client service and this policy outlines our ongoing obligations to you in respect of how we manage your Personal Information.

Dominium Capital Group is bound by the Australian Privacy Principles (APPs) contained in the Privacy Act 1988 (Cth) (Privacy Act). The APPs are designed to protect the confidentiality of information and the privacy of individuals by regulating the way personal information is collected, used, disclosed and managed. Personal information is, generally speaking, information or an opinion relating to an identified, or reasonably identifiable, individual.

This policy explains the types of personal information that we may collect and hold, how that information is used and with whom the information is shared. It also sets out how you can contact us if you have any queries or concerns about this information.

Why do we collect personal information?

Dominium Capital Group collects your personal information so that we can perform our various functions and activities. Dominium Capital Group also collects your personal information if the law requires us to collect it. If Dominium Capital Group does not collect your personal information, we may not be able to deal with you, or provide you with a product or service.

Dominium Capital Group collects most personal information directly from you. For example, you provide us with your information when you open an account, fill in an application form, deal with us over the telephone, send us a letter, use our websites or visit our office. If you apply for products or services, Dominium Capital Group may collect and hold information from you such as your name, address, telephone number, e-mail address, tax file number (TFN), date of birth, annual income and other financial details, place of work, credit history, and your transaction history.

Collecting information from third parties

Dominium Capital Group may also collect information about you that is publicly available, including information from telephone directories, the electoral roll or other websites.

There may be occasions when Dominium Capital Group collects personal information about you from a third party. For example, Dominium Capital Group may collect personal information from:

- Credit reporting bodies if we request a report about your credit history;
- Other credit providers if we request information from them about the products they provide to you;

- Organisations that Dominion Capital Group has an arrangement with to jointly offer products and/or has an alliance with to share information for marketing purposes to provide you with products or services and/or to promote a product or service;
- Our related entities so we can better manage your relationship with all Dominion Capital Group companies;
- Marketing companies if we acquire contact information to tell people about Dominion Capital Group products and services that may interest them; and
- Other parties who may have introduced you to Dominion Capital Group.

Dominium Capital Group does not use cookies on our website(s).

Collecting sensitive information

Sensitive information is personal information about a person's racial or ethnic origin, political opinion, membership of a political association, religious beliefs or affiliations, philosophical beliefs, membership of a professional or trade association, membership of a trade union, sexual orientation or practices, criminal record, genetic information or health information.

Dominium Capital Group will not collect, use or disclose sensitive information about you unless we need the information for one of our functions or activities and we have your consent (or we are legally required to do so).

For example, Dominion Capital Financial Advisers often collects health information from you, with your consent, to assist you in applying for life insurance. Any chosen insurer that Dominion Capital Financial Advisers deals with may also collect information about you if your family members apply for products such as life insurance or trauma and disablement cover.

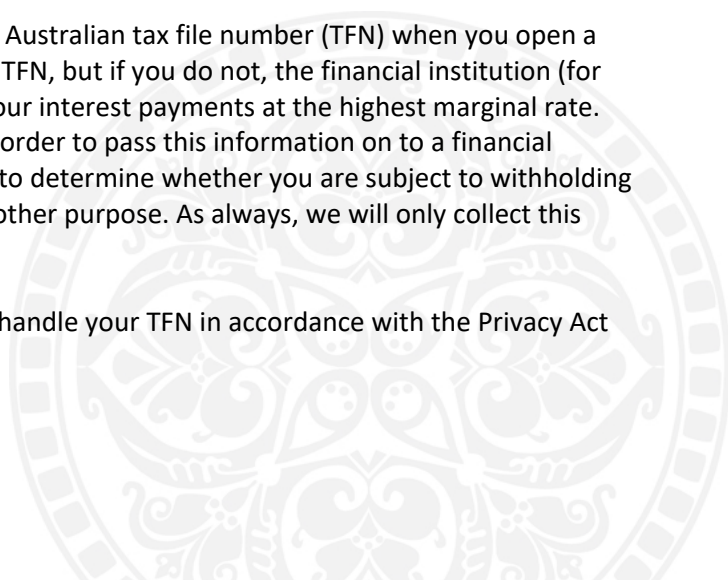

Collecting information required by law

Dominium Capital Group may collect information from you because we are required or authorised by an Australian law or court or tribunal order to collect that information. We will tell you if collection is required or authorised by law and provide you with details of the law, court or tribunal order.

For example, when you open a deposit account or take out a loan, Dominion Capital is required under the Anti-Money Laundering and Counter-Terrorism Financing Act to collect certain information from you to prove your identity, such as your driver's licence or passport details.

Dominium Capital Group companies may collect your Australian tax file number (TFN) when you open a deposit account. It is not compulsory to provide your TFN, but if you do not, the financial institution (for example, a bank) may deduct withholding tax from your interest payments at the highest marginal rate. Dominion Capital Group will only collect your TFN in order to pass this information on to a financial institution, for the purposes of that entity being able to determine whether you are subject to withholding tax on any interest payments you receive and for no other purpose. As always, we will only collect this information with your consent.

If Dominion Capital Group collects your TFN, we will handle your TFN in accordance with the Privacy Act and Guidelines issued by the Commissioner.

The National Consumer Credit Protection Act 2010 requires entities which provide credit assistance and advice, like Dominion Capital, to make inquiries into the financial situation, needs and objectives of individuals who apply for consumer credit. This is to ensure the credit provider has the information – such as the individual's financial commitments, income and liabilities - to make an informed decision about whether the individual can afford the credit they are applying for.

Dominium Capital Group may also be required to ask about your tax residency status under taxation information sharing agreements the Australian Government has in place with other countries. For example, a tax treaty between Australia and the United States formed under US law (Foreign Account Tax Compliance Act) requires Australian financial institutions and fund managers to ask account holders of some types of products whether they are US citizens or US tax residents when they open their product. If you are a tax resident of another country, the relevant treaty or law may require us to collect your relevant foreign tax identification number.

Using your personal information

We may use and disclose personal information we collect about you for several purposes including:

- To consider your request for a product or service;
- To enable Dominion Capital Group to provide a product or service;
- To tell you about other products and services that may be of interest to you;
- To manage accounts and perform other administrative and operational tasks (including risk management, systems development and testing, credit scoring and staff training, collecting debts and market or customer satisfaction research);
- To consider any concerns or complaints you raise against Dominion Capital Group and/or to manage any legal action between you and Dominion Capital Group, its associates and or other related entities;
- To prevent or investigate any actual or suspected fraud, unlawful activity or misconduct;
- To identify you or establish your tax status under any Australian or foreign legislation, regulation or treaty pursuant to an agreement with any tax authority; and
- As required by relevant laws, regulations, codes of practice.
